Theft, Breakage, No-busing May Cause Price Increase

Omaha University Food Services have lost some $800 in stainless steel dinnerware over the past two years, J. F. (Jack) Heckinger reported this week.

Heckinger, the director of University Services, said the dinnerware apparently was stolen.

The loss of the dinnerware is one of the factors that may demand an increase in OU food prices, he said.

The University has launched a probe to determine whether a boost in food prices would be in order.

"Our budget doesn't cover the cost of thefts, breakage, busing and extra janitorial or custodial service," he said.

He said the loss of dinnerware is difficult to detect immediately because Food Service covers four areas—the main dining room cafeteria, the faculty lounge, the OUampi Room and the Conference Center.

Some 20-thousand persons use those areas per week, he said, and it is not practical to count the silver every day.

The cost of breakage has been kept down, Heckinger said, because employees who damage dishes must pay for them "out of their own pockets."

Congestion in the OUampi Room is a big problem, he said, where the cash register rings over 12 thousand times a week.

If the University covers the cost of busing dishes in the OUampi Room, he said, "we would have to add three full-time employees."

There has been a lack of cooperation from students in busing their own dishes, he said, and the University may have to start doing the job itself which possibly could bring an increase in food prices.

"The place has been a shambles," he said.

Controller Harold Keefover agreed.

"The messy atmosphere concerns all of us. We don't relish the idea of the OUampi Room becoming the pigpen the old Shack used to be," Keefover said.

President Milo Bail said Food Service will supply the Administration with its cost figures for the first semester.

Then, Dr. Bail said, he would meet with Dean of Administration Kirk Naylor, Heckinger and Keefover to "consider" the matter.

"There are no definite plans at the current time" to raise food prices, Keefover emphasized.

"We are not looking at this just with the idea of raising food prices . . . it has not yet been determined whether that will be necessary," he said.

"The Board of Regents and the Administration want to serve the very best food possible at the lowest possible cost. But it has to be self-sustaining," he said.

OU's food prices are generally "five to 15 cents lower per item" than those at the University of Nebraska, Heckinger said.

KETV Features Special on OU

A special program "Behind the Books and Beakers" will be presented on KETV, Jan. 30, at 8:30 p.m.

Academic life at the University of Omaha and of Creighton University will be portrayed in the film. This includes night courses and the Bootstrap program from the University of Omaha.

It will point out the effects of the two campuses on the City of Omaha, economically and talent-wise.

Planteen Fund Reaches $804

Contributions to the Kathy Planteen Memorial Scholarship Fund totaled $804.80 by Jan. 17, according to the Dean of Students office.

The fund was established in the memory of Kathy Planteen, an Omaha University sophomore, who was killed two weeks ago in an automobile accident.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution, whether individual or group, may do so through the Dean of Students' office in the Student Center.

Tele-lecture Links London, New York-Iowa and Nebr.

The relatively new concept of "Tele-Lectures," which feature guest speakers via long-distance telephone, has been extended to include overseas programming.

Noted English historian Astor Professor (Emeritus) Sir John Neal of the University of London, will speak to audiences at Drake University in Des Moines, and to the Nebraska schools of Dana, Midland, Wayne and Omaha University directly from his London home at the Jan. 31 program.

The Dana and Midland audiences will be at Midland. The program will be held from 10 to 11 a.m.

A colleague, Dr. Frederick G. Marcham, professor of English History at Cornell University will participate in the program, speaking from Ithaca, New York.

The program for all participating institutions will be moderated from OU by Dr. A. Stanley Trickett of the history department. He will present a 15-minute illustrated lecture on the "Age of Great Elizabeth."

The program will be divided into four segments, beginning with a five-minute welcome by OU President Milo Bail, Sir Neal and Dr. Marcham will each present ten-minute talks. Background information will be given in Dr. Trickett's 15-minute segment. The final ten minutes will be a question-and-answer period.

OU conference director Michel Beilis said that each participating institution will project pictures at appropriate times on three separate screens in their respective auditoriums.

President Bail said, "This is a pilot program that we hope might relieve the acute teacher shortage in the years ahead."

He expressed hope that the concept will someday develop into a "share the professor plan" among several institutions.

Class Attendance Policy Established

The Deans of the Omaha University colleges met Tuesday and adopted a policy for class attendance which will be applied in all colleges.

The regulation states:

"Students are required to attend all meetings of classes for which they are registered. In no case will an absence constitute an excuse for failure to complete any of the assigned class work. Irregular attendance will be reflected in lowered course grades; moreover, absence reports are regularly sent to the academic deans and to the Dean of student Personnel, who will take appropriate disciplinary action."

"In case of an unavoidable absence, it is the student's responsibility to contact his instructor promptly and arrange to make up any work missed. Students who have been excused from classes by the Dean of Student Personnel to represent the University in any authorized activity will be given full credit for work made up."

No Rescheduling For Final Exams

Rumors around campus to the effect that if three or more finals are scheduled for the same day, that one of them can be rescheduled, have proved groundless.

Official word from Dean Donald Pflasterer is that all finals will be given as scheduled.

"There can be absolutely no exceptions," Dean Pflasterer emphasized. "We realize that having three finals on the same day is hard on a student, and we regret this fact," the Dean said, "but too much confusion results from rescheduling."

Activities Are Set For Graduation

Mid-year commencement activities will be held Saturday, Jan. 27 at 10 a.m. in the Fieldhouse.

Graduates may pick up their caps and gowns at the Bookstore, Jan. 26. All caps and gowns will be collected in room 101 of the Applied Arts immediately after the commencement exercises.

Traditional tassels may be purchased at this time for 35 cents.

Graduates are to report to room 101, Applied Arts, at 9:15 a.m. on the day of commencement.

President Milo Bail will confer 327 bachelor degrees and 13 master's degrees during the exercises. The undergraduate degrees include 69 bachelor of science, one bachelor of fine arts, 17 bachelor of arts and 240 bachelor of general education degrees.

Most of the candidates for Bachelor of General Education degrees and the 18 men who are candidates for Bachelor of Science in Military Science are Bootstrappers.

Commencement speaker, Dr. J. Richard Palmer, president of Morningside College, will address graduates on "Silken Slippers and Hobnail Boots."

President and Mrs. Bail will hold a reception for the graduates and their families following commencement exercises in the Student Center Ballroom.

Tuition, Fees Due Jan. 29

Jan. 29 is the last day for students who pre-registered to pay their tuition and fees in the Cashier's Office and call for their class cards in the Registrar's Office.

Those students who did not pre-register may register for second semester classes Feb. 2 from 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

A $3 late fee will be assessed if a student registers Feb. 3. A $6 fee for late registration must be paid Feb. 5 through Feb. 9, which is the last day for adding credit classes to a day school schedule.

Changes in program may be made starting Feb. 5 with payment of the $5 fee. Students may drop courses from 8 a.m. to noon on this date without losing a percentage of their tuition.

If a student drops a course or withdraws from noon on Feb. 5 through Feb. 16, he will receive a refund of 75 per cent of his tuition; from Feb. 19 through March 2, 50 per cent, and from March 5 through March 16, 25 per cent. If a student drops a course or withdraws after March 16, no refunds of tuition will be issued.

Play Tryouts Scheduled

Tryouts for "Look Homeward Angel," Omaha University's second theatrical production, will be February 5, 6 and 7 at 7 p.m. in the University Theater, according to Dr. Edwin Clark, director of the University Theater.

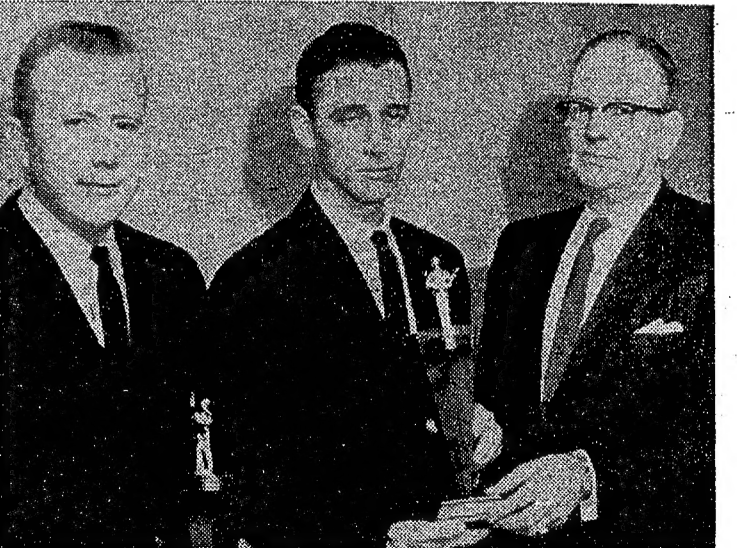

"Look Homeward Angel" is the story of a young man's struggle to find his own identity. The cast includes 10 male roles and nine female roles.

The play, written by Ketti Frings, is based on a novel of the name by Thomas Wolfe, who has been called the most authentic voice of the younger generation. "Look Homeward Angel" opened on Broadway late in 1957. In 1958 it won the Pulitzer Prize and the New York Critic's Award.

Production dates at OU are March 8, 9 and 10.

Prof. C. Harrold Bush is the technical director.

Bob Thomas, Max Voight Win Intramural Speech Contest

President Milo Bail presents trophies to Max Voight and Bob Thomas, winners of Omaha U's first Intramural Speech Contest.

One hundred and fifty-three spectators saw Bob Thomas and Max Voight carry off the first and second place trophies in the Omaha University Intramural Speech Contest finals Tuesday afternoon.

President Milo Bail awarded the trophies to the winners. In an impromptu speech he urged everyone to "Speak up."

He noted that there is a lack of the "Good morning-hello-how are you," type of conversation as students meet on campus.

"You must have a touch with other people, you must speak," "Omaha is known as a congenial community," he said, but congeniality on the OU campus is in sad shape.

The Intramural Speech Contest was designed to promote this kind of conversation and speaking. The contest will be held every semester and is open to all students. This semester there were 34 entries in the preliminaries of the contest, which was narrowed down to seven finalists who competed in the last round of the contest Tuesday.

The judges for the contest Robert D. Harper, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts; William Gerbacht, Student Activities Director; Ron Kaplan, vice-president of the Pleskach and Smith Advertising Agency; Al Henderson of Henderson's Insurance; and Steve Bell of the WOW-TV news department.

The speeches were from five to seven minutes long and were humorous entertaining after dinner speeches.

Gold Speech Medals were awarded to the five runner-ups, John Aboud, Jamie Aiken, Phyllis Pavel, Ed Pechar, and Linda Peterson.

GPI Expands; Responsible For Publicizing University Life

By Pam Stronberg

To interpret the activities of Omaha University to the public, publicizing every aspect of University life, is the responsibility of the General Printing and Information office.

The origin of GPI has been obscured by time; but its operation, under the direction of Robert McGranahan and assistant Dotie Hayes is always expanding.

News and feature releases to Omaha papers and broadcasting media about OU activities, students and faculty are a small part of the duties of GPI. Pamphlets about the University are distributed throughout the year and each spring a mailing list, comprised of potential OU students, is sent to high schools within a 50-mile radius.

GPI organized the University's Speaker's Bureau for the benefit of outside organizations wishing a speaker from the faculty.

Publicity for the athletic department plays an important part in GPI's function. Sports Information Director Richard Kaegele releases player information and pictures to media in the Omaha area and also in the area where the team has a game.

A replacement for Kagle, who leaves this month, has not yet been found.

"That You May Know," a monthly news bulletin about the University, written and distributed by GPI, has an approximate circulation of 6,000.

GPI operates separately from Student Publications, being directly responsible to President Milo Bail.

Students may bring to the office, Administration 1-6, any stories or information about themselves or their organization for possible publication in one of the Omaha papers or other media.

Council Makes Rule Changes

The Student Council made several changes in the election rules at its Jan. 16 meeting.

Major changes include the following:

"There shall be no definitely assigned campaigning positions any place on campus. There shall be no organized campaigning in the outer lobby of the Student Center or any other place on campus any time prior to the election."

This leaves campaigning on an individual basis employing casual conversations.

On election day a Student Council member will be placed in the entrance of the Student Center for the purpose of encouraging students to vote—however, not for a particular candidate.

Complete election rules will be published in a later issue of the Gateway.

"Instructors Could Lessen Class Cutting"

By BILL GROW

The word is out and it's official—there is no "excuse" for skipping classes at Omaha University.

What prompted the "official notice" to be issued? It represents no large departure from the methods employed in the past to deal with class cutters; so says Don Pflasterer, dean of Student Personnel.

He did say, however, that directives from instructors to send mailed notices to "cutters" were heavier than usual this semester.

The bulk of these notices were issued to students enrolled in courses in the Liberal Arts college. This doesn't necessarily indicate that students in that particular college are more inclined to "skip" than are other students.

As Dean Pflasterer pointed out, many "survey" courses—English, psychology, etc.—come under the jurisdiction of that college. And most students in all of the colleges are required to attend these classes.

The Dean added, however, that this may be a good time for everyone involved in the situation to stop, look and evaluate.

And the first place to start is with the student since he directly creates the problem by not attending classes.

There is little that can be said about this fellow that hasn't already been thoroughly worked over.

There are a few things which might be mulled over by two factions less directly involved—parents and teachers.

These two groups are generally not brought into play as disciplinarians or "coaxers" on the college level but there are certain things they can do to enhance class attendance without bringing into play an official whip.

And what can be said about parents? If they aren't taking the proper steps now it's likely they have performed in a like manner during the formative years of their offspring. It's unlikely they can be reached at this stage of the game.

But perhaps, many instructors, particularly in the large, required classes, would benefit themselves and their students if they'd step back 10 paces and take a look at what they're doing.

It becomes impossible to retain even the smallest amount of interest in a subject when an instructor stands for an entire semester and reads from a textbook.

It has been said a thousand times before, and may be said as many times again before any changes are made—students can read the books themselves. If they couldn't they wouldn't be here.

And those whose classes contain material generally referred to as "dry" might find some way of "breaking up" classroom routine. Something two degrees this side of a miracle would be needed to turn this neat little trick. But everyone involved would land it as well worth the effort.

There's a negative and positive approach to this as there is in all problems. For the negative viewpoint one might look over Economics Professor Roderick Crane's "silver point" system.

Each student is allotted so many points at the beginning of a semester and losses so many for each class cut. Grades sharply reflect the number of remaining points when the semester ends.

In defense of the system, student knows full well at all times what his class standing is. And all of this without any directives from above.

On the positive side let's again go to Mr. Crane.

You'll have no trouble finding students who haven't been "converted" to economics after the required cruises through the "dismal science"—Mr. Crane's own cheerful description.

Nor is there any great influx of students rushing to enroll as econ majors after being declared "non-peasants" by OU's master of the complex subject.

But finding students who are disgruntled about the way Mr. Crane presented his material won't be an easy task.

This professor, obviously not bored with economics since he is a recognized expert in the field, nevertheless discovered that many people are bored with it.

He proceeds early in the semester to liven the subject up with a mixture of smiles, lively patter, pokes and a good choice of textbooks.

In between all this he presents in a logical manner the economic facts of life in a manner which, if it isn't always simple, it's at least decipherable.

And when it's all over, most agree they have retained a surprisingly large amount of material. And too, most say, interest is always generated. Perhaps the interest doesn't always reach the "pure fascination" stage but it's never completely absent.

In short, the whole problem of class cutting might be lessened by encouraging attendance in conjunction with the now-official method of discouraging cutting.

Clark: Good Season for Broadwayites

By Fran Campbell

Dr. Edwin Clark, director of the University Theater, took a vacation from directing, and spent two weeks in New York viewing the theater from the front side of the stage.

"Anyone in the arts should keep abreast of what is going on in the arts," Dr. Clark emphasized. For this reason, he annually makes a trip to New York City to view the shows on Broadway.

A total of 19 Broadway shows came under his eye this trip. The musicals, "Carnival," starring Marie Alberg, and "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," with Robert Morrison and Rudy Vallee, were "delightful" according to Dr. Clark.

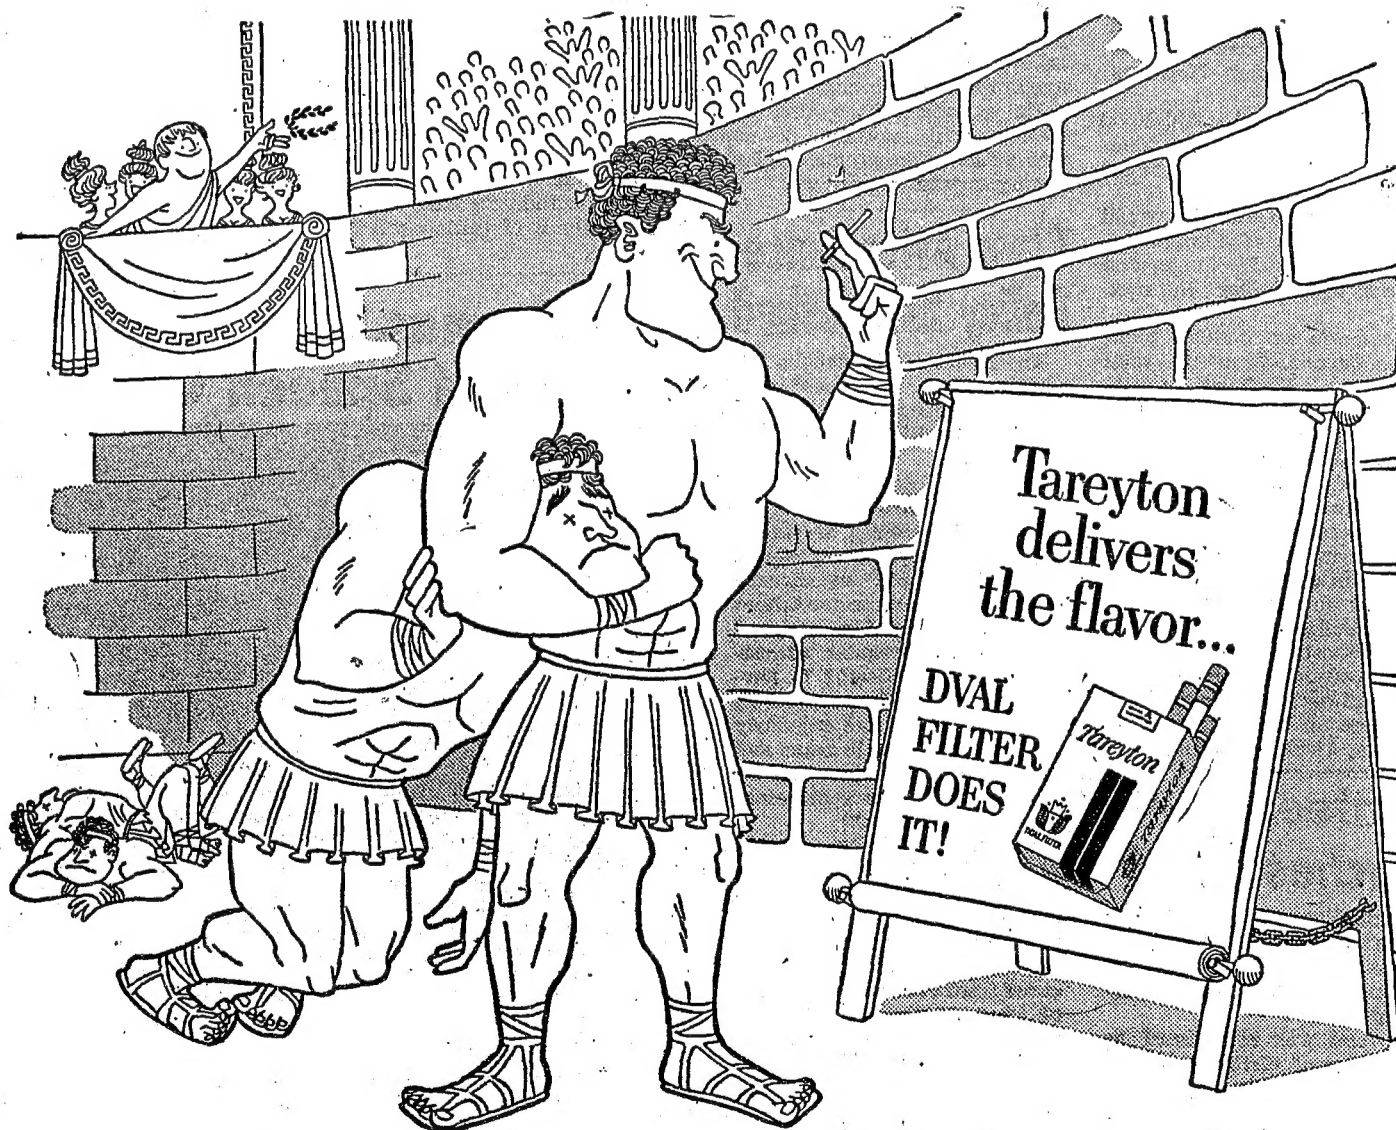

The most outstanding plays on Broadway in Dr. Clark's opinion were "Gideon," with Frederick Marsh and Douglas Campbell, "A Shot in the Dark," starring Julie Harris, "Man for All Seasons," "Mary-Mary," and "Gay Life."

Dr. Clark was among those attending the opening night of "Ross." During the performance, he sat next to the actor, Douglas Fairbanks.

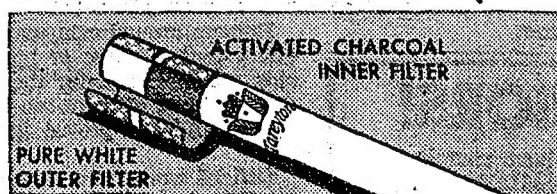

In comparison to other years, Dr. Clark described this as a "good" season on Broadway.

He also attended some "off Broadway" shows in Greenwich Village.

While in New York, Dr. Clark had brunch with actress, Carol Burnett, his longtime friend and then was her guest at the taping of the Gary Moore Show.

Clubs Seek Cultural View

Language clubs at the University of Omaha seek to give their members a cultural view of the people speaking the languages they study.

The French Club, "Le Cercle Francais," presents a different aspect of French culture at each meeting.

At their Wednesday in the Student Center, Mrs. Arthur Quinn, a former resident of Morocco, spoke on life in French Morocco. They plan to cover French art at a future meeting.

Next spring the club will have a French banquet. The atmosphere will be completely French, from the conversation and menus to the food and tableclothes.

The French Club is open to any student taking or interested in French. They meet the first Tuesday in each month.

The officers are Mary Jean Horn, president; Ed Rigby, vice-president; Jeannie Mullen, secretary, and Joyce Rosenberg, treasurer.

Forrest Hazard, S. A. Spagnuolo and Dr. George Rothrock are the sponsors.

Club Motivates Interest
"El Club Espanol" meets once a month. Its purpose is to motivate an interest in Spanish and to learn more about the culture of Spanish-speaking peoples.

The club is open to any student taking Spanish.

Their guest speakers speak in Spanish. Recently, a Cuban woman told of life in Havana.

C. S. Espinosa is the club's sponsor. The officers are Diane Morey, president; Lu Villafuerte and Nancy Nelson, vice-presidents, and Georgia Heidcamp, secretary.

New officers will be elected in March.

RING IN THE NEW

Are you still writing "1961" on your papers and letters? I'll bet you are, you scamps! But I am not one to be harsh with those who forget we are in a new year, for I myself have long been guilty of the same lapse. In fact, in my senior year at college, I wrote 1873 on my papers until nearly November of 1874! (It turned out, incidentally, not to be such a serious error because, as we all know, 1874 was later repealed by President Chester A. Arthur in a fit of pique over the Black Tom Explosion. And, as we all know, Mr. Arthur later came to regret his hasty action. Who does not recall that famous meeting between Mr. Arthur and Louis Napoleon when Mr. Arthur said, "Lou, I wish I hadn't of repealed 1874." Whereupon the French emperor made his immortal rejoinder, "Tipi que nous et tyler tu." Well sir, they had many a good laugh about that, as you can imagine.)

But I digress. How can we remember to write 1962 on our papers and letters? Well sir, the best way is to find something memorable about 1962, something unique to fix it firmly in your mind. Happily, this is very simple because, as we all know, 1962 is the first year in history that is divisible by 2, by 4, and by 7. Take a pencil and try it: 1962 divided by 2 is 981; 1962 divided by 4 is 490-1/2; 1962 divided by 7 is 280-2/7. This mathematical curiosity will not occur again until the year 2079, but we will all be so busy then celebrating the Chester A. Arthur bi-centenary that we will scarcely have time to be writing papers and letters and like that.

Another clever little trick to fix the year 1962 in your mind is to remember that 1962 spelled backwards is 2691. "Year" spelled backwards is "raey." "Marlboro" spelled backwards is "orobram." Marlboro smoked backwards is no fun at all. Kindly do not light the filter. What you do is put the filter end in your lips, then light the tobacco end, then draw, and then find out what pleasure, what joy, what rapture serene it is to smoke the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste. In 1962, as in once and future years, you'll get a lot to like in a Marlboro—available in soft pack and flip-top box in all 50 states and Duluth.

But I digress. We were speaking of the memorable aspects of 1962 and high among them, of course, is the fact that in 1962 the entire House of Representatives stands for election. There will, no doubt, be many lively and interesting contests, but none, I'll wager, quite so lively and interesting as the one in my own district where the leading candidate is none other than Chester A. Arthur!

Mr. Arthur, incidentally, is not the first ex-president to come out of retirement and run for the House of Representatives. John Quincy Adams was the first. Mr. Adams also holds another distinction: he was the first son of a president ever to serve as president. It is true that Martin Van Buren's son, Walter "Blinky" Van Buren, was at one time offered the nomination for the presidency, but he, alas, had already accepted a bid to become Mad Ludwig of Bavaria. James K. Polk's son, on the other hand, became Salmon P. Chase. Millard Fillmore's son went into air conditioning. This later was known as the Missouri Compromise.

Cagers Stop Losses With Victory Over Morningside

Indian Joe Neuberger drives past Morningside defender in Indian's win Tuesday.

By Mike Moran

Things were bright on the campus of Omaha University this week after the Indian basketball team chalked up a fourth and very satisfying win at the expense of a big and rugged Morningside College crew, 55-53, in the Fieldhouse Tuesday night.

The contest was up for grabs from the start with the lead changing hands six times. Only a fine board job by Morningside's rugged 6 ft 6 in. Bob Garretson kept the Maroon Chiefs from Sioux City on top by 32-26 at intermission.

Bruce Hunter switched to Garretson and despite a three inch deficit in height, held Garretson to a single bucket during the second half.

The Indians turned an eight point deficit into a 54-45 lead with 6:17 to go.

Morningside missed two attempts in the last nine seconds but Bruce Hunter came through with the vital rebound and the weary Indians held on to win 55-53.

Omaha had plenty of heroes but Hunter, with 14 points and many timely buckets and Ken Conner, with a fine floor game and 17 points, must be singled out.

The win gave the Indians a 4-6 record and assured the best Omaha record since the 1957 season. The win also ended a five-game victory drought.

The Indians do not play again until Feb. 2 when they meet St. Benedict's at Atchison, Kansas. The next home game will be Feb. 6 against Washburn.

Last Saturday the Indians suffered their third consecutive CIO loss at the hands of the St. Benedict's Ravens, 79-71.

The Ravens poured it on the surprised Omahans the first half to lead at intermission 49-31.

The Indians came roaring back behind Joe Neuberger and Bill King to narrow the gap to five points but once again the tall Ravens pulled away to win.

Omaha was led by King with 21 points and Neuberger with 19.

2-Sport Athlete To Undergo Knife

Kenny Allen, Omaha University sophomore football and baseball player, will undergo an operation for a knee injury during the semester break.

Allen suffered the injury during early football workouts in the fall and was unable to shake the injury during the season.

The two sport letterman was a quarterback on the 1960 grid club and hit well as a first baseman on the Central Intercollegiate Conference baseball championship ball club last spring as a freshman.

Chi O Champs In Volleyball

Chi Omega was proved successful in capturing the Women's Recreation Association volleyball championship last week.

Alpha Xi Delta, after pulling out a quick win in the first of the three-game series on Wednesday, Jan. 10th, never again moved into the win column during the rest of the playoffs.

Alpha Xi Delta took the first game by a score of 11-6. Chi Omega came back in the next two games of the first series with victories of 15-0 and 14-3.

It took only two more games for Chi Omega to sew up the championship on Thursday evening. Scores of 15-13 and 13-4 made it unnecessary to play the third series in the tournament.

The WRA wishes to thank all scorers and officials who helped to make the tournament a success.

Mary Buck shot her way to the championship in the Women's Recreation Association Rifle Tournament last week.

With a score of 97, Mary squeezed by her closest competitors, Elaine Schuman with 96, and Voleen Dolinsky with 95.

OU Students Spice Amateur Game

The Knight's held on Tuesday night as they downed Oriental Trading 2-1 for their third straight win in the Omaha Amateur Hockey League.

The Knight's were a man short most of the final stanza because of penalties dished out during the heated contest.

One was a two minute slashing penalty to Omaha University student Gary Sindelar.

Dale Swanson an OU grad, helped to turn the tide for the Knight's, however as he turned Knight's, however as he turned in another brilliant goal tending job.

Doug Stone, currently an OU student, turned in a commendable performance tending goal for the Orientals.

In the early game, The Blues, led by Red Morgan, Mike Mullins and OU's Ken Socha, couldn't find the combination as they dropped a 3-1 decision to Jim Murphys.

Tied going into the last match, Omaha's hopes were high. For the last time Arch Ferguson contested Dennis McKee, Art won by a decision.

But Ferguson had a stroke of bad luck. In the final period, Arch and McKee were tied 1-1. With five seconds left in the match, McKee gained a take-down and won 3-1.

Louie Miloni pinned Ralph Green in 1:47. He also pinned Green in the first Graceland match.

George Crenshaw posted another victory over Gary Collins with his 6-4 win, while John DeGeorge, taking Randy Curnow's spot, won 3-1.
